Konferenzen, Seminare und Vorträge

Konferenzen und Seminare sind ein wichtiger Teil unserer öffentlichen Leistungen. Wir organisieren Veranstaltungen einerseits zum Kernbereich unserer Forschung, um uns mit ReferentInnen und TeilnehmerInnen auszutauschen und diese Expertise auch einem größeren Personenkreis zu vermitteln. Wir verfolgen aber auch das Ziel, auf diesem Weg neue Ideen und neues Know-how zu bekommen.

Unser jährliches "Spring Seminar" richtet sich vor allem an die Mitglieder des Instituts, aber auch an VertreterInnen von Stakeholder-Organisationen. Die Veranstaltung ist für uns nach wie vor ein „Aushängeschild“, mit dem wir auf die Expertise des Instituts hinweisen wollen. Das Thema des diesjährigen Seminars war "Central, East and Southeast Europe: Stock-Taking and Outlook. 30 Years of Change – 45 Years of wiwiw". Es gab zwei prominente Keynote-Speaker: Ivan Krastev, Vorsitzender des "Centre for Liberal Strategies" und Permanent Fellow am IWM und Jan Svejnar, Direktor am „Center on Global Economic Governance“ der Columbia University. Die MitarbeiterInnen des wiwiw präsentierten relevante Forschungsergebnisse; den Abschluss bildete ein Panel von Unternehmervertretern aus der Region. Wir bedanken uns sehr herzlich bei der Oesterreichischen Nationalbank, die als Gastgeberin des "Spring Seminar" fungiert und auch beim Staatssekretär im Bundesministerium für Finanzen, DDr. Fuchs, der ein Einleitungsstatement hielt. Das Spring Seminar war von der Anzahl der TeilnehmerInnen her das erfolgreichste bisher; wir erhielten auch ein sehr positives inhaltliches Feedback.

Eine weitere jährliche Veranstaltung mit Öffentlichkeitswirksamkeit ist die "Global Economy Lecture", ebenfalls eine Kooperation mit der OeNB, die diesmal von Caroline Freund, Director, "Macroeconomics, Trade & Investment" der Weltbank zum Thema: "Trade, Inequality, and Populism" gehalten wurde. Auch diese Veranstaltung war sehr gut besucht.

Die jährliche Łaski Lecture wurde zu Ehren des früheren wissenschaftlichen Direktors des Instituts, Kazimierz Łaski (1921-2015), eingeführt und findet in Zusammenarbeit mit der Arbeiterkammer Wien statt, wofür wir uns sehr herzlich bedanken. Sie bietet eine Plattform für Ökonominnen, die in der Tradition von Łaski arbeiten. Im Jahr 2018 hielt Baron Robert Skidelsky, Emeritus Professor für Political Economy an der Universität Warwick einen Vortrag zu "Keynes and the Future of the Euro-Zone".

Das Institut hat zwei regelmäßige Seminarreihen, eine zum Thema "International Economics", die sich an ein akademisches Publikum richtet und in Zusammenarbeit mit dem FIW veranstaltet wird; eine zweite wendet sich an ein wirtschaftspolitisch interessiertes Publikum und behandelt das Thema "Policy Perspectives for European Integration". In Summe wurden 2018 13 solcher Seminare veranstaltet. Zusätzlich veranstalteten wir mehrere Workshops im Rahmen von Projekten und Vorträge von GastforscherInnen bzw. zu aktuellen Themen.

Unsren Mitgliedern und Vertretern der Stakeholder bieten wir seit einigen Jahren eine zusätzliche Veranstaltung, das "Experts' Breakfast" kurz vor unseren Prognoseberichten. Diese Veranstaltung bietet die Möglichkeit, in einem informellen Rahmen eine "peer-to-peer" Diskussion über die aktuelle wirtschaftliche Lage der MOSOEL-Region zu führen und den Austausch mit den anderen ForscherInnen und Analysten in Wien zu pflegen, die zu diesem Thema arbeiten.

Wir führen auch mehrere Seminare am Joint Vienna Institute durch, die von BMF und OeNB finanziert werden. Die Seminare zu den Themen "Foreign Direct Investment", "Public-Private Partnerships", "Structural Reforms", "Competitiveness, Growth and Crisis" und einer "Einführung in die österreichische und europäische Wirtschaftspolitik" im Rahmen des "Applied Economic Policy" Kurses stoßen nach wie vor auf großes Interesse bei den Teilnehmern und werden sehr positiv bewertet. Für das Institut ist dies eine Möglichkeit, seine Vernetzung in der Region zu stärken.

Central, East and Southeast Europe: Stock-Taking and Outlook

30 Years of Change – 45 Years of wiiw

- Economies across much of Central, East and Southeast Europe (CESEE) are booming, with economic activity at or close to levels not seen for almost a decade. Wages are rising strongly, and convergence with Western Europe is firmly back on track.
- However, behind the headline numbers, important risks exist, both at the global and regional level, which could yet knock the recovery off course. More fundamentally, political developments point to clear unhappiness among many in the region with the transformation that has taken place in the past three decades, and a feeling that the fruits of growth have not been shared by all.
- Beyond the current upswing, and with past drivers of growth largely exhausted, there are questions about what the region's new growth model will be, and whether it will be able to continue to converge with Western Europe over the long term.

It is in this context that the Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw) is organising its Spring Seminar. The event will also mark the 45th anniversary of the wiiw. This provides an opportunity to look back at the transformation of the region over the past four and a half decades, and at issues that were at the core of wiiw's research and analysis over the period. Even more importantly, we will look forward, focusing on some of the most relevant current economic and political challenges faced by CESEE, and outlining the way ahead.

The region has come a long way since we started out in the 1970s: transition to market economies and democracy, and integration with Western Europe, have brought growth and prosperity to most countries in CESEE. However, this profound transformation has also created significant costs and challenges. Many countries in the region have experienced considerable population declines, a deep transformation crisis, higher inequality and social problems.

For many years, these challenges were seen as temporary. The widespread hope for positive change and catching up with Western European countries in a relatively short time remained the defining narrative. The prospect of accession to the EU was seen as the most important vehicle to achieve this. However, following the 2007-08 global economic and financial crisis, things changed.

Over the past decade, investment and productivity growth have been well below pre-2008 levels. CESEE countries have been less favoured by foreign investors than before the crisis. The region's relative laggards, especially the non-EU members, have been badly affected. Disillusionment has emerged, helping to propel populist parties to power in parts of Central Europe. More serious conflicts arose in the EU Neighbourhood countries. In addition, internal problems with the EU have led to a stalling of the accession process for countries in the Western Balkans.

Despite this challenging context, there are reasons for optimism. Recently, helped by a boom in the Eurozone and the start of the new EU funds cycle, much of the CESEE region has been able to show a robust economic turnaround. Major challenges and risks remain, but most countries are again converging with Western Europe.

During the Spring Seminar, we will address the following key questions:

- How much longer will the coordinated upswing across much of the world continue, and to what extent will CESEE continue to benefit from this?
- How have the drivers of CESEE growth changed, and to what extent is the recovery now more sustainable and broad-based?
- Are parts of CESEE overheating?
- What are the major global and regional risks facing the region in the next three years; how likely are they to materialise, and what will their impacts be?
- Will the Western Balkans countries ever join the EU, and if so when?
- Does China represent a serious challenger to the EU in CESEE?
- Is there a risk of a formal east-west split within the EU, and what would this mean for growth in the region?
- Has CESEE hit the limits of its current growth model?

Economic Policy Implications of the Belt and Road Initiative for CESEE and Austria

Workshop Programme

Tuesday, 5 June 2018

Venue: Diplomatische Akademie | Vienna School of International Studies
Favoritenstraße 15a, 1040 Vienna

The Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), a vision to revive the ancient 'Silk Road', was first presented by China's President Xi Jinping in 2013. This initiative is particularly interesting for Austria due to the country's strong economic relations with Eastern Europe and the Western Balkans.

The region of Central, East and Southeast Europe (CESEE) has a particularly high need for infrastructure investments, which form the core of the BRI. Chinese investments in the region are becoming increasingly important and are accompanied by the diplomatic initiative '16+1'. These initiatives bear opportunities and risks in the fields of trade, foreign direct investment, and cooperation in information and communication technology and the financial sector.

The workshop aims at sharing experiences with BRI investments and expectations regarding the development of the '16+1' initiative and Austrian relations with China. It also gives the opportunity to discuss a wiiw study commissioned by the Embassy of the People's Republic of China in Austria on economic implications of the BRI for CESEE and Austria.

The opening of the workshop will be held in German with translation into Chinese. The presentation of the study as well as two panel sessions will take place in English.

Panel discussion on

Ukraine's Economic Development and the EU Association Agreement

22 October 2018

Diplomatische Akademie Wien
(Favoritenstraße 15a, 1040 Vienna)

OUTLINE

Since 2014, Ukraine has been facing the double challenge of overcoming a severe economic crisis and implementing economic reforms at the same time. So far, the track record on both has been mixed. Since 2016, the country has started recovering, and the currency has been reasonably stable. Also, Ukraine has started implementing its Deep and Comprehensive Free Trade Agreement with the EU (as part of a broader Association Agreement), which helped re-orient its trade flows towards the EU. At the same time, institutional improvements - and in particular the progress in fighting corruption - have been generally modest, constraining the inflows of foreign investment. Other major challenges include stubbornly high inflation and unemployment - the latter despite the increased outflow of labour force abroad.

These issues will be debated by a range of economic experts, including the advisor to the Ukrainian government (and former finance minister of Slovakia) Ivan Miklos and representatives of three Ukrainian think tanks: the Centre for Economic Strategy, CASE and VoxUkraine, as well as of the Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw).

Eastern Partnership External Relations Workshop: “Connectivity in EU’s Wider Eastern Neighbourhood”

29 November 2019, Vienna

Austrian Central Bank (OeNB),
Otto-Wagner Platz 3, 1090 Vienna

Programme

9:30 Registration

10:00 Welcome

Thomas M. Buchsbaum, Special Envoy on Eastern Partnership, Austrian Federal Ministry for Europe, Integration and Foreign Affairs

10:10 Opening

Lawrence Meredith, Director for Neighbourhood East, European Commission, DG Near (tbc)
Hannes Swoboda, President, Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw)

10:30 Panel I: The development of the EAEU and the EU, and effective multilateralism

This panel will compare the very different stages of institutional and integrational development of the EAEU and the EU as well as the respective goals and prospects of the two integrations. The present development stage of the EAEU / Eurasian Economic Commission will be commented from the perspective of the EU’s / European Commission’s own history of development.

How effective are the multilateral processes within the EAEU and the EU – including the EaP’s multilateral track - and how are relations between both institutions and third party international institutions designed and implemented?

Chair: Alexandra Dienes, Research Associate, FES ROCPE, Vienna

Speakers:

Dirk Schübel, Head of division Eastern partnership bilateral, Directorate EASTEuropean External Action Service, Brussels

Andreas Stadler, Austrian diplomat and political scientist, Vienna

Andrea Hofer, International Relations Specialist, Austrian Central Bank (OeNB)

Ekaterina Dyachenko, Court of the Eurasian Economic Union, Minsk

12:30 Lunch break

13:30 Panel II Macro-economic aspects and effects of EU-EAEU cooperation and potential integration

This panel will discuss potential effects of integration, focusing on economic growth, trade and foreign direct investments. It will review the existing model-based theoretical and empirical evidence of integration effects using the experience of Central and Eastern Europe, AA/DCFTA countries as well as the remaining EaP countries.

Chair: Peter Havlik, Economist, Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw)

Speakers:

Nathaniel Young, Principal Economist, European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD), London

Diana Galoyan, Head of International Economic Relations, Armenian State University of Economics, Yerevan

Viachaslau Yarashevich, Leading researcher, International University "MITSO", Minsk

Valeryi Pyatnyckyi, Vice President, Black Sea Trade and Development Bank (BSTDB), Thessaloniki, and former Chief Negotiator of AA/DCFTA

Amat Adarov, Economist, Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw)

15:00 Coffee break

15:30 Panel III Sectoral connectivity, including infrastructure, energy and labor markets issues

Transport infrastructure and energy, together with mobility, are among the priority areas identified at the EaP Brussels Summit in November 2017. Whereas energy infrastructure and transit traditionally represent one of the key challenges for EU-EAEU economic relations, the issues related to labour market developments are becoming increasingly important on the background of migration, labour market shortages and remittances in both the EU and EaP countries.

Chair: Michael Landesmann, Senior research associate and former Scientific director, Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw)

Speakers:

Hermine Vidovic, Economist, Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies (wiiw)

Yuri Shcherbanin, Head of Laboratory, Institute of Economic Forecasting (IEF), Russian Academy of Sciences (RAS), Moscow

Igor Burakovskiy, Director, Institute for Economic Research and Policy Consulting IPCR, Kyiv

Johannes Leitner, Head of Competence Center for Black Sea Region Studies at the University of Applied Sciences BFI Vienna

17:00 Closing remarks

Eastern Partnership External Relations Workshop: “Connectivity in EU’s Wider Eastern Neighbourhood”

29 November 2019, Vienna

Austrian Central Bank (OeNB),
Otto-Wagner Platz 3, 1090 Vienna

Background

Connectivity is a key concept and goal of the Eastern Partnership of the EU (EaP). ‘Stronger Connectivity’ including in the transport and energy sectors is one of the four key priority areas of the ‘20 Deliverables for 2020’ agreed upon at the Brussels EaP Summit of 24 November 2017. Connectivity in EU’s Eastern Neighbourhood extends beyond the borders of the EaP partner countries, to the territory of the Russian Federation, to Asian members of the Eurasian Economic Union (EEU) such as Kazakhstan and Kyrgyzstan, and to the Chinese OBOR initiative.

The EU launched the Eastern Partnership initiative in 2009 in the framework of its Neighbourhood Policy. EaP comprises six countries: Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Georgia, Moldova and Ukraine. The latter three EaP countries have concluded Association Agreements, including Deep and Comprehensive Free Trade Area with the EU (AA/DCFTA agreements entered in force in 2016-2017). The other two EaP countries, Armenia and Belarus, are members of the Eurasian Economic Union (EEU: comprising also Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan and the Russian Federation), a regional integration project in Eurasia driven by Russia since the 1990s and formalized in 2015 on the basis of the previous Customs Union. Moldova recently became an observer of the EEU, upon request by its (non-executive) President and contrary to the opinion of the government. The recent progress in ‘frozen’ conflict’s resolution involving Moldova’s separatist region Transnistria represents a promising example of enhancing economic connectivity in the EaP region. A similar approach could be used to improve connectivity in other frozen conflicts: Abkhazia and South Ossetia as well as Nagorno Karabakh.

Armenia is another interesting case: having withdrawn from signing AA/DCFTA in September 2013 and subsequently having joined the EEU, the country concluded a Comprehensive and Enhanced Partnership Agreement (CEPA) with the EU in November 2017 and thus seeks a closer cooperation with both the EU and EEU. Finally, Azerbaijan is pursuing more autonomous policy, yet it negotiates a trade and political agreement with the EU that should be ready for ratification next year. Even Belarus that traditionally has close relations with Russia and the EEU is seeking to improve trade and economic relations with the EU, for example by negotiating bilateral agreements with the EU and by hosting an informal EaP Dialogue in June 2018. However, neither Azerbaijan nor Belarus are members of the WTO – a prerequisite for a proper free trade agreement with the EU.

Apart from the complex institutional relations among and within the EaP countries, the geopolitical rivalry between Russia and the EU about their shared neighbourhood, including a competition between the EU and the EAEU, is having adverse effects on the countries concerned (Ukraine being the most egregious example, but others suffer from the EU-Russia tug-of-war over their shared neighbourhood as well). At the same time, some of the contested countries are internally split and attempt to find more balanced and sustainable integration solutions. Politically, they want to achieve a stable security environment and, economically, an improved economic connectivity in the region since they are interested in trading both with the EU and with the EAEU.

Whereas the EAEU is in the early stage of its formation process - from a (still incomplete) free trade area to a Customs Union and ultimately aiming at an EU - like “common market” comprising four freedoms of movement (goods, capital, services and labor), it is seeking legitimacy and the international recognition, the EU is reluctant to establish formal inter-institutional contacts with the EAEU and privileging bilateral contacts to the EAEU’s individual members. Largely owing to the conflict in and around Ukraine, the Russian Federation represents the main stumbling block in launching official EU-EAEU contacts which would go beyond lower-level expert technical negotiations.

Outline

The workshop will explore selected aspects of connectivity/ways to improve connectivity in Europe in the context of economic relations between the EU, EAEU and other EaP countries. The individual panels will deliberate on cooperation experiences of the EU and the EAEU and explore ways of linking existing AA/DCFTAs between the EU and its three EaP partners (Georgia, Moldova and Ukraine) to the remaining EaP countries (Armenia, Azerbaijan and Belarus) and Central Asia. The focus will be on three topics: effective multilateralism; macro-economic aspects and effects of EU-EAEU cooperation; and the sectoral connectivity. The workshop is organized in the framework of Austrian Presidency of the EU Council.
